them and was theirs to dispose of as they would. In ordinary conversation among Zionists at Jerusalem it had been asked 'What shall be done with the Church of the Holy Sepulchre? Shall it be burned or razed to the ground?'

In 1948 the Jews realized their first objective by "proclaiming a Jewish State" in 80% of the territory of Palestine by force and massacre. The transplanted alien Jewish minority expelled over one million indigenous Palestinian Christians and Muslims. Among these Palestine refugees there were over 100,000 Christians. Only 65,000 Christians remained in the occupied 80% of Palestine that had been proclaimed a "Jewish State" in 1948. There are today less than 40,000 captive Christians in so-called "Israel."

During the 1948 Palestine War, Jews destroyed, desecrated and profaned Christian churches, convents and institutions throughout the occupied areas. These acts of destruction, desecration and profanation of Christian holy places and institutions were repeated throughout the June 1967 war and continue to this day. Jews are now in total possession of Palestine and the last stage of their plans will be carried out when they feel more certain about permanent possession of Jerusalem. Hundreds of Christian families were expelled from Jerusalem. With the object of deceiving the world, Jew propagandists constantly proclaim their good intentions towards the Christian and Muslim holy places in Jerusalem. But nothing will deter these Jews from carrying out their fanatic programme to completely eradicate Christianity and Islam from the Holy Land.

"Political Zionism is an agency of Big Business. It is being used by Jewish and Christian financiers in this country and Great Britain, to make Jews believe that Palestine will be ruled by a descendant of King David who will ultimately rule the world. What delusion! It will lead to war between Arabs and Jews and eventually to war between Moslems and non-Moslems. That will be the turning point of history." — Henry H. Klein, in his A Jew Warns Jews (1947).

Middle East Important to USA

The Middle East is of vital importance to the best interests and national security of the United States. The United States has important economic interests in the Middle East. The strategic position of the Middle East has great military value to the national security of the United States and its European allies. The Middle East population now consists of over 100 million Muslim and Christian Arabs and 2½ million Jews.

The proven crude oil reserves in the Middle East were estimated in 1967 at 260 billion barrels. This constitutes 70% of the total world oil reserves, and 82% of the free-world's oil reserves. United States oil companies own and control more than 142 billion barrels by their concessions in the Middle East. The Middle East share of the world's total production is 40%. The Middle East provides 7 million barrels per day to Europe and 2.5 million barrels per day to Japan. Two-thirds of the crude oil produced outside the United States by United States companies come from the Middle East. American investments in the Middle East were estimated at three billion dollars in 1967. Profits earned by the United States companies from Middle East operations are more than two billion dollars annually. The Arab countries import annually from the United States products and services to the value of over one and one half billion dollars. So-called "Israel" imports less than 200 million dollars which is subsidized annually by over one billion dollars in United States Government free grants-in-aid, tax-free, tax-deductible funds and by "Israeli Bonds." So-called "Israel" is a great financial drain upon all taxpayers of the United States.

The United States can play an important role in the industrial and development programmes in the Middle East by becoming the main source of capital, machinery and technical assistance. Politically and ideologically the people and government of the United States have many mutual interests with the peoples and governments of the Arab States.

The good will and friendship of the governments and peoples of the Arab States are vital and essential to the best national interests, the national security and economy of the United States. The Arab people are devout Christians and Muslims. They cherish their religious beliefs and the freedom of the human individual. They oppose communism as a way of life. No Arab country permits the existence of a communist party, while so-called "Israel" has two communist parties with communist members sitting in their parliament. Tel-Aviv is the Middle East headquarters for communist operations.

Zionist-Dictated U.S. Foreign Policy

The Zionist-dictated United States Middle East policy alienated the sympathy and friendship of the Arab masses and brought tension, suspicion, distrust and unfriendly relations between many Arab States and the United States which never existed before.

The United States and other western powers supported Zionist colonialism in the Arab world politically, economically and militarily. They supplied so-called "Israel" with sophisticated weapons to maintain an illogical imbalance of power with so-called "Israel" having a striking power greater than the combined forces of all the Arab States. Five Arab States were compelled to seek arms for their defense from the Soviet Union while certain Arab States which refused to buy arms from the Soviet Union in spite of enticing offers, as Jordan did, were let down by the United States.

The Arab States would never have turned to the Soviet Union for weapons had there never been a so-called "Israel," a colonial wedge driven into the heart of the Arab world. The Soviet Union could not have established naval bases in the Mediterranean had it not been for United States policy of blindly supporting "Israel." The Soviet Union is using the Arab-Zionist conflict to enhance its influence, prestige and best interests, and to undermine United States standing and interests in the Middle East. While supplying Syria, the United Arab Republic, Iraq and Algeria with tanks, airplanes and technical assistance, the Soviet Union is pressuring the Arab States towards a peace settlement which constitutes a grave betrayal and treason against Palestine and its people. However, the more the United States continues to blindly support so-called "Israel," it will further push the Arab masses into the outstretched arms of the Soviet Union and international communism.

Had the Soviet Union implanted Soviet experts in Washington to plan United States Middle East policy, they could not have done better to serve Soviet interest. The statement of Secretary of State Dean Rusk on June 7, 1967 saying "victory for so-called Israel is victory for the United States" demonstrates how short-sighted and wrong United States policy makers are and always have been.

The Zionist political octopus in the United States pressured the Johnson Administration, and is now conducting a vicious pressure campaign against the Nixon Administration and the United States Congress, to commit the United States as an accomplice of so-called "Israel" to enable it to reap the fruits of its wars of aggression. Today Zionists oppose a fair, just, or impartial United States Middle East policy for very obvious reasons.

U.S. Friendship Favors Israel

On December 10, 1969, Secretary of State William P. Rogers made a statement on United States Middle East policy. His statement was 80% pro-Zionist but it showed a degree of independence from the Zionist point of view. He expressed concern about United States interests and national security. Although the Secretary of State urged the United States policy should be even-handed, it was not even-handed. It supported the illegal and immoral Zionist usurpation of the Holy Land and gave approval to parts of expansionist plans of the Jew invaders to usurp more Arab territory. The Zionist gangsters in occupied Palestine, American Jewish leaders, and American political stooges acting for the Zionists, immediately attacked the statement of the Secretary of State calling his new policy "a betrayal of Israel's interest." As a result of Jewish pressure, President Nixon on the 25th of January 1970 sent a message to the Jewish leaders' conference which mitigated Jewish anger aroused by Mr. Rogers' statement. Golda Meir, a Jewish communist school teacher from Wisconsin, was so gratified by President Nixon's message that she commented: "The message of President Nixon gave eloquent expression to the friendship of the United States for Israel and its concern for Israel's security and peace."

In his message to the United States Congress on February 19, 1970, President Nixon restated United States Middle East policy. The reaction of the international gang of Tel-Aviv to that statement was reflected in an editorial of the Jerusalem Post the same day, February 19, 1970. The Jerusalem Post in that editorial stated: "On the Middle East, the message contains a number of points which coincide with the positions of the Israel government. There is a similarity in the assessment by Washington and Jerusalem of Soviet policy in our region. President Nixon's pessimism about the Four Power talks as reflected in his message, also brings his position on this issue close to that of Israel, and there is even a closer agreement on other questions." The Jerusalem Post further stated: "For the Israeli public, the most important part of the message will probably be the reaffirmation of America's determination to maintain the balance of power, and to send arms to

"Jewish leaders want world power; nothing less will do. They have many Jews believing that they are the 'chosen' people." Jews were chosen for destruction after their leaders caused Jesus to be executed. All Jews have suffered since. A large part of the so-called persecution is artificially created to keep Jews scared and to stimulate cash contributions. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been extracted from them in the past 25 years." Henry H. Klein, in his Jewish Leaders Are Crazy for Power (1950).

friendly countries when necessary. This statement reinforces the impression that the White House has in fact decided to reply positively to Israel's requests for additional planes, for it is only Israel's superiority in the air which can prevent a new large scale war in the Middle East."

The above statement confirms that United States Middle East policy is tailored to fit the objectives of so-called "Israel" to enable it to achieve its criminal expansionist programme. The peace advocated for the Middle East by United States administrations is not for a peace based upon justice and international law. It is a counterfeit peace designed to confirm the illegal and immoral consequences of aggression and conquest violating the inalienable right of the people of Palestine to self-determination.

Soviet Objectives in Middle East

In 1947 the Soviet Union in the United Nations strongly supported the partition of Palestine. When the Jew gangsters of Tel-Aviv in May 1948 illegally "proclaimed" so-called "Israel," the Soviet Union was second to the United States in recognizing that illegal "proclamation." The Soviet Union in 1948 supplied the Jews in Palestine with all the weapons they required to win their 1948 war. The weapons were air-lifted from Karkov and Czechoslovakia. Throughout 1948-1949 the Soviet Union competed with the United States in championing the Jewish cause in the United Nations and in 1949 sponsored international recognition for that illegitimate state by voting acceptance of their membership in the United Nations. Jewish leaders in occupied Palestine assured Soviet leaders that so-called "Israel" would become the outpost in the Middle East for the Soviet Union. They pointed out that the
